Think you have the world of reporting all locked down?

Come join this material-rich, enlightening workshop and you will definitely walk away with some very useful information.

Our skilled presenters have an extensive history in the industry and they are well-prepared to share their background and knowledge by providing attendees with what's needed to stay compliant related to reporting.

This learning session also offers an historical perspective on the why of where we've landed by placing accountability and reporting requirements directly on the drug manufacturer. Distinctions will be drawn regarding separate types of reporting at the federal and state levels, specific timelines for each, the investigative process, and, which states have more stringent requirements than the FDA.

Don't miss this informative workshop filled with facts, insights and the kind of discussion you can't find anywhere else.
