The FDA Compliance Program Guidance Manual on the enforcement of drug sample distribution requirements of the PDMA (Program 7356.022) directs the FDA Inspector to inquire about all of the programs the manufacturer utilizes to distribute prescription drug products at no cost.

Are you aware of the company's free drug programs that may exist in addition to the Free Drug Samples? For many companies, this may include Patient Assistance Programs, "Free Trial or Insurance Delay" programs, and "Product Replacement Programs."

This workshop will cover various types of Free Goods Programs and how they are different from a regulatory and risk perspective.

By understanding the differences among the various programs, you'll learn how to assess and manage compliance risks more effectively, ultimately improving your organization's existing compliance program.

Ensure you're equipped to handle the complexities of Free Goods Programs and their regulatory requirements.
