WORKSHOP ANNOUNCEMENT

Transparency Best Practices 2026: Streamlining Your Approach

Presented By

Johan Holm

Principal, Analytics & Transparency Services, IQVIA

Debbie Tay

Assoc. Director, Commercial Operations, SecuraBio Pharmaceuticals

As Open Payments reporting becomes more complex, organizations need greater visibility, stronger controls, and more efficient processes to maintain compliance. Leading companies are streamlining their transparency programs by implementing standardized data management and analytics-driven oversight, which reduces manual effort, minimizes rework, and helps teams focus on more urgent compliance priorities.

In this workshop, our seasoned presenters will explore how to manage Open Payments reporting more efficiently and effectively, helping you build a smarter, more reliable approach to transparency. Key topics will include:

- Reducing the administrative burden across compliance, IT, and operations — learn how to simplify workflows, minimize handoffs, and streamline reporting processes.
- Centralizing and standardizing compliance and transparency data — discover practical strategies for unifying data across internal systems and third party sources to create a single, trusted foundation for compliance oversight.
- Using analytics to provide year round visibility into data quality, progress, and spend — explore how continuous monitoring enables teams to identify issues early, track performance in real time, and strengthen reporting accuracy.
- Doing more with existing resources — uncover strategies for reducing time spent on low value tasks so teams can focus on higher impact, strategic compliance initiatives.

Join us to uncover proven strategies for streamlining Open Payments reporting and strengthening transparency efforts.
