

Still Waiting on Approval to Attend?

Every year, we hear from attendees who know coming to the Sharing Conference is the right move, but need a little backup to get the green light. If that's you, here are a few reasons the Sharing Conference is worth the investment:

- The value. The practical frameworks and insights from our workshops are built to reduce compliance risk and operational rework, offering ROI that's easy to point to down the road.
- The efficiency. Three days cover what would otherwise take months to piece together, all in one place with direct access to peers and experts.
- The connections. The exhibit hall puts you face-to-face with compliance and commercial operations solution providers who already understand the challenges your organization is facing.
- The ongoing benefits. Registration includes a full year of Sharing Alliance membership, with continued access to compliance resources and archived sessions.
- The legacy. This isn't an unproven, one-off conference. For more than 30 years, the Sharing Conference has been a go-to event for pharma and biotech compliance professionals.

Don't miss your chance to tackle the topics you care most about and take part in the conversations you've been waiting to have. Share this email with your manager, or use these starting points to build your own case.
