Developing a Data Governance Framework and Policy does not have to be an overwhelming feat. Building an organizational mindset and culture of being a data-driven company needs to start with corporate leadership.

This workshop will provide valuable insights and help connect the dots. Our two skilled presenters will discuss the steps to be taken in building out a Data Governance program that maps all things data within an organization.

Key principles will be discussed within the framework including the life cycle of data (acquisition, utilization, quality, stewardship, access), operating model and other important concepts for a successful policy creation. Don't miss this important educational opportunity to get the answers you've been looking for!
